

In memory of
1LT Gregory F. Zavota

9 September 1983 - 7 October 2007

Greg was a person of amazing strength and character. He achieved incredible accomplishments in his twenty four years. His attributes included; Eagle Scout, lettered athlete, track captain, mission volunteer, graduate of West Point with a degree in aeronautical engineering, and a Black Hawk pilot. Although these accomplishments were of great stature, it was a small representation of the kind, giving person that Greg was. His heart was his greatest quality. Greg saw into the soul of people and was there for all that needed him. He worked as a team leader for Charlie Company, 6-101st Aviation Regiment, 101st Airborne Division, at Fort Campbell, Kentucky. He was assigned this duty after taking a rank demotion to switch from the aviation branch, to the medic branch so he could fly medevac missions. He wanted to help save lives, rather than take them. He took his soldiers by the hand that were assigned to him and became a part of their lives. He was in charge of their physical fitness regiment and made sure they not only did his workouts, but he did them with them. If they had personal issues that interfered with work, he took it upon himself to personally help resolve them. His actions earned him a post humorous award, the army commendation medal, for meritorious service while serving as a forward support medevac team leader. He was known for his smile and his sense of humor, as well as his determination and hard work. He was an inspiration to all that met him. We thank each of you for your dedication to our country. We wish you contentment and happiness in your life.

In loving memory of our son and Kerri's beloved brother,
